Bio
Dave Flippo brings his diverse and eclectic background and experiences to the music he writes, and the result is contemporary jazz that often surprises the listener with its distinct, quirky sound. While earning a Doctorate and Master's degrees in music composition at the University of Michigan and the Eastman School, Dave studied world music on the side and absorbed all the jazz he could, of course, while driving a cab. Initially the band began with world-jazz fusion compositions, then veered off into vocal settings of the Tao Te Ching and recently spread out to include odd-meter compositions and arrangements of rock tunes from Hendrix and Bowie to Radiohead and Soundgarden.
